

Abstract:

Human operators play important role to the safety of marine operations. The presentation is focused on how to integrate human element in modeling and analysis of safety of marine operations. Two examples, i.e. FPSO and shuttle tanker tandem offloading operation, and DP (dynamic positioning) operations on mobile offshore drilling units, are presented to illustrate the modeling approaches, findings, lessons learned and current research challenges.